Market Overview

Three main factors characterised the investment landscape in January, namely US president Barack Obama's planned changes to the banking sector, concerns about the scale of national debt in Greece and speculation that the Chinese authorities might soon begin to tighten the country's monetary policy. This final issue fuelled fears of a potential fall in demand for raw materials, which largely explains why commodity prices suffered a sharp correction.

The Fund declined 5.1% (bid-to-bid basis), underperforming its benchmark which declined 4.2%. The Fund's exposure to the consumer goods-related businesses contributed to returns. Investors favoured stable, cash generative food and agricultural-related businesses, including Agrana Beteiligungs, Ireland's Kerry, US firms Constellation Brands and Scotts Miracle-Gro. Confidence in Agrana was boosted by the release of encouraging results. Some of the strongest returns for the Fund came through positions in Symrise and Arkema. Shares in Symrise benefited from improving sentiment about its prospects and it opened a new plant for liquid flavouring in Singapore to increase its range and production capacity in Asia. Commodity prices fell in response to concerns about future demand from China. This had a negative effect on those cyclical stocks in the portfolio that are involved in the production and supply of raw materials and metals. Lonmin, Noble Group and Imerys declined in value. Shares in Anglo-Irish oil & gas exploration group Tullow Oil depreciated after a large capital raising. The proceeds raised were used primarily to exercise the right to buy out Tullow's partner, Heritage Oil, at the Lake Albert development in Uganda. We sold Elders and Eastman Kodak and had reduced the Fund's exposure to BHP Billiton. Some of the proceeds from this sale were reinvested in more defensive stocks such as Corn Products. We added to positions in coal and iron producer Aquila Resources, gold miner Resolute Mining and global ports operator DP World.
